

WAGNER UNIVERSITY CUBA | LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE

PREPARING LEADERS FOR THE NEW CUBA

140 Cuban students have graduated with their master's degree. With the right resources, this movement can spread across the island.

"No electricity. No computers. No phones. They graduated anyway."

01 | THE MILESTONE

They earned their master's degree

140

Cuban leaders graduated from Wagner University Cuba with master's-level formation.

Wagner University Cuba is not a plan on paper. These graduates are already prepared to serve their churches, families, and communities.

02 | THE COST

They studied through what most of us never face

WHAT THEY FACED

NO ELECTRICITY

Lessons carried on without reliable power

NO FOOD

Scarcity at home — still showing up

NO COMPUTERS

Notebooks and handwritten notes

NO PHONES

Few ways to connect or download

WHAT WE DID

300 USB FLASH DRIVES

We bought them so every student could carry and study the course material.

SOLAR PROJECTORS

We obtained them so groups could meet and study without electricity.

03 | THE HUNGER

Even now, they are hungry to be educated in the Kingdom

In a country where power fails and food is scarce, people still gather in homes and church halls asking for the next level of formation.

1,500+

students waiting in just two provinces

What exists today is small because access is small — not because the hunger is small.

04 | THE MULTIPLIER

With the right resources, Wagner can spread like wildfire

The model is simple, relational, and deeply local — a distributed network, not a single building. A solar projector, a flash drive, and a trained local leader can turn any living room into a classroom.

05 | NO TIME TO WAIT

This is bigger than a degree.

If Cuba enters a post-communist political and economic transition, the question will not only be who leads — but who is prepared to serve. The Church has learned how to endure under pressure. A new season will also require leaders with education, wisdom, character, and practical ability to help strengthen communities and institutions.

We do not have time to wait. We cannot say, “Let’s wait a couple of years to expand Wagner University in Cuba.” This could be the resource we need to free our nation — and to govern it well once we are free.

This is not simply an initiative to see more than 10,000 Cuban students move through master’s-level formation.

LEADERSHIP FOR EVERY SPHERE OF INFLUENCE

Church

Family

Education

Business

Public Service

Media

Arts & Culture

Education is not the final goal. The goal is leaders prepared to help restore communities, create opportunity, strengthen institutions, and serve Cuba for generations to come.

06 | FIRST-PHASE PARTNERSHIP GOAL

One goal. One generation. One national vision.

$100,000

FIRST-PHASE GOAL

Your partnership turns hunger into formation and puts the right resources in the hands of leaders ready to teach.

BEYOND GIVING, YOU CAN MENTOR

Share practical wisdom from business, education, ministry, media, and other fields.

CONNECT

Open doors to churches, foundations, entrepreneurs, universities, and marketplace leaders.

No small gift is small when it helps prepare a leader.

WAGNER UNIVERSITY CUBA

PREPARE THE LEADERS. SERVE THE NATION.

Imagine what becomes possible when access expands across the island.

Will you help prepare the generation that can help restore Cuba?

COME

Join us and see the work firsthand.

GIVE

Help reach the $100,000 first-phase goal.

PRAY

Stand with the students and leaders.
